Dexter water mains should be 'substantially complete' by mid-June

by Mike Lange

DEXTER – The $2.13 million construction project to replace about 6,900 linear feet of water main pipe on Spring and Church streets in Dexter should be "substantially complete" by mid-June, according to Dexter Utility District superintendent Jeff Wiers.

"We should be back to normal soon after that. The lines should be in and connected," Wiers said. "There will be some clean-up and lawn and sidewalk work afterwards, but the major construction should be finished."

One glitch that almost hampered the progress is the town's shoreland zoning ordinance that prohibits excavating work within a certain distance of a lake or stream between Nov. 1 and May 15. Little Wassookeag Lake falls within the 250-foot setback at Dam Street.

But Code Enforcement Officer Al Tempesta met with Wiers and the contractors Friday and said that construction could proceed. "They're all certified in erosion control and the project is an essential service to the community," Tempesta said. "This serves everyone, not just one particular business."

Tempesta said he discussed the issue with Town Manager Shelley Watson "and she agreed that the project should move forward."

The code enforcement officer added that Memorial Day is coming up in a few weeks "and if we had to delay the construction, traffic would be clogged up right by the Exxon station (on Church Street)."

Wiers said the mild weather has helped everyone stay on target. "As long as we don't get any unexpected spring rains, we're good to go," he said.

Wiers also said that plans for the Maine DOT to resurface Route 7 through Dexter have been moved to the 2017 work plan. "Our engineers been told that the job won't go out to bid until next April," he said. "We assume it's going to be done some time, but we just don't know the time frame."

Tempesta said he was also disappointed with the MDOT decision. "They're just prolonging the pain," he said.

The USDA Rural Development Agency is picking up 42 percent of the cost of the water main project and the Dexter Utility District is financing the rest of it with a 40-year loan at an interest rate of 2.75 percent.

Veto of jail funding threatens taxpayers, supporters say

AUGUSTA – Several lawmakers have criticized Gov. Paul LePage's veto of a bill to provide extra funding for county jails during the next year.

The Legislature will reconvene this week to consider overriding some of the governor's vetoes including rejection of the jail funding bill (LD 1214).

"Lawmakers have been working hard with sheriffs and other county officials on this bipartisan solution," said Rep. Jeff McCabe (D-Skowhegan), the House Majority Leader. "In communities like mine in Somerset County, property taxpayers are already being squeezed by inadequate school funding and sharp drops in mill valuations."

As amended, the legislation provides an extra $2.4 million during the next fiscal year for Maine's county and regional jails.

The bill was sponsored by Sen. Kim Rosen (R-Hancock) and went through several procedural moves before being enacted "under the hammer" in the Senate or by unanimous consent.

The bill passed the House by a vote of 115-32, more than the two-thirds margin needed to override a

Milo Police Chief disappointed with veto of Narcan access bill

by Mike Lange

MILO - Last summer, the Milo Police Department became the first law enforcement agency in Piscataquis County to have naloxone on hand, a medication that temporarily reverses the effects of an opioid overdose and restores breathing Police Chief Damien Pickel, who is also Milo's town manager, credited the drug with saving at least three lives over a short period of time.

So Pickel said he was angry and upset last week when Gov. Paul LePage vetoed a bill passed by the Legislature that would have allowed naloxone - also known by its brand name Narcan - to be available as an over-the-counter medication.

"The governor said in his veto message that naloxone "does not truly save lives. It merely extends them until the next overdose."

LePage added, "Creating a situation where a heroin addict has a needle in one hand and a shot of naloxone in the other produces a sense of normalcy and security around heroin that serves only to perpetuate the cycle of addiction."

"The governor has no idea how to address the addiction and drug issue in the state of Maine," Pickel said. "Anyone who believes that Narcan is just an addict's safety net is cynical."

Pickel posted an open letter to LePage on the Milo Police Department's Facebook page, stating that by denying that Narcan saves lives, "You are being disingenuous and are doing a disservice to those of us who have administered it. It does save lives. It's not a safety net for the addict that will 'perpetuate the use of heroin.' When an addict is overdosing, they lack the skills to administer it themselves."

The police chief suggested that the governor "listen to your police, fire, EMS and medical professionals before you make any further uninformed statements." Pickel said that he might "get some flak" for the post, but he stands by it. "If the governor wants to be a part of the solution, he should fund treatment and outpatient centers in towns like Milo. We are the forgotten part of Maine."

There were 17 people who testified during a committee hearing on the bill (LD 1547) and all who spoke favored it. Cora Best of the Maine Medical Association (MMA) said that 235 people in Maine died of opioid overdoses last year. "Unlike many other causes of death, an opioid overdose is almost always reversible with Naloxone; however, there is typically a very short window of time in which the drug is effective."

gubernatorial veto. Rep. Norman Higgins (R-Dover-Foxcroft) and Rep. Paul Stearns (R-Guilford) voted in favor of the bill while Rep. Ray Wallace (R-Dexter) opposed it.

LePage, in his veto message, pointed out that county funding for operation of jails is currently capped. "If counties spend above the cap, which they invariably do, then the state is asked to provide supplemental funding to cover the different," he wrote. "For too long, state taxpayers have had to pick up the tab for the cost of the county jails because, due to the cap, there is no incentive for counties to rein in jail spending."

The governor indicated that if the bill had a provision to eliminate the cap on county funding, he might not have vetoed it.

The Piscataquis County jail budget has been capped by the state at $878,940 this year, but the actual cost of operating it is over $1.4 million, according to County Manager Tom Lizotte.

Supporters of the legislation say that there are many reasons why the cap doesn't work including unexpected expenses for prisoners with extensive health needs and increased cost of facilities maintenance.

Rep. Lori Fowle (D-Vassalboro), the House chair of the Criminal Justice and Public Safety Committee, accused LePage of "suggesting that the Legislature should impose a tax shift on to local communities. We as a committee and as the representatives of those communities, rejected that. I'm urging my colleagues to stand behind this bipartisan solution and override the governor's veto next week."

Krazy Jake Comedy Show to benefit Trafton fire fund

by Mike Lange
DENTER— One of New England's fastest-rising comedy stars will host a show at Dexter Regional High School on Friday, May 6 to assist a Dexter dairy farmer who lost his home, barn and milking equipment to a fire earlier this year.

"Krazy Jake" Hodgdon's show is named "Till the Cows Come Home" – and it's an appropriate title for the fundraiser.

Kenny Trafton lost nearly half of his 80-cow dairy herd in the March fire and the surviving animals are being cared for at Dennis Blaine's farm, a mile-and-a-half away from their home.

"Things are picking up for us," Trafton said. "We had an excavator come in to do some clearing over the weekend. Hopefully by the end of the week, we'll be able to set the footing and gravel for the milking parlor."

Mud season hampered Trafton's cleanup and rebuilding efforts for a while, but he said that the road is much better now. "There are no soft spots," he said. "The truck loop is 100 percent hard right now."

Trafton's goal is to get the milking parlor finished by June 1. "Then we can turn them out on green grass," he said. "We want them home by then."

The Krazy Jake Comedy Show is expected to give a nice boost to ongoing community efforts to assist Trafton.

Hodgdon currently stars in the Animal Planet TV show "Yankee Jungle" and has made over 400 appearances in New England during the past three years including the Skowhegan State Fair, Waterville Opera House, Collins Performing Center for the Arts at UMaine and Husson University.

Maine Highlands FCU celebrates 50th anniversary

by Diane Parola
DEXTER - Since 1966, Maine Highlands Federal Credit Union has been proudly serving its members. From its humble beginnings in a shoebox at Dexter Shoe Factory to its current status with five locations and over $100 million in asset size, Maine Highlands FCU will be celebrating its 50th anniversary all year long.

The year began on April 18, 2016 at the credit union's annual meeting. This year, to get back to its roots, Maine Highlands FCU's annual meeting was held at Factory One which is housed in the former Dexter Shoe Factory #1. Credit Union Board Chairperson, Linda Dulac welcomed approximately 200 guests in attendance and reported on how much growth the credit union has seen in just the last year with a 8.8% increase in asset size. It's 11,700 members now have access to many technology services including a new internet banking platform, bill pay, mobile banking, remote check deposit, as well as EMV chip debit and credit cards.

Supervisory Committee Chairperson, Tammy Lovejoy, reported on the safety and soundness of the credit union "feeling confident that Maine Highlands FCU is taking all the appropriate steps to improve and strengthen its operations".

President and CEO, Rhonda Taylor reported on all the changes that have taken place in the her last 30 years of employment at the Credit Union; from handwritten receipts, to giant computers, adding machine tapes, fax machines, internet, email, and all the technology changes throughout the years. Now having to deal with fraudsters and hackers is an everyday concern and the amount of cyber security protection needed to keep members funds secured.

The evening was also dedicated to those fifty-plus members who opened their accounts during the credit union's first year (1966) and still hold those accounts today. More than twenty of those members were in attendance.

State Representatives, Paul Stearns, Norm Higgins, and Senator Paul Davis were in attendance and presented the Credit Union with a Legislative Sentiment. A buffet dinner was served by Perley's Catering and all members took home a nice gift.

time," she said.

The bill passed in the Senate 25-8 and in the House by a margin of 98-49.

Rep. Norman Higgins (R-Dover-Foxcroft) and Rep. Paul Stearns (R-Guilford) voted in favor of the bill while Sen. Paul Davis (R-Sangerville) and Rep. Ray Wallace (R-Dexter) opposed it.

The Legislature is expected to revisit several bills vetoed by the governor, including this one.
