May 29 Summit Project is 'living memorial' to fallen

by Mike Lange
MILLINOCKET - For the third year in a row, a group of hikers will climb Mount Katahdin, each carrying an engraved stone of a service member who lost their life on active duty since Sept. 11, 2001.

The trek takes place on Sunday, May 29, the day before Memorial Day.

The Summit Project was started by Marine Maj. David Cote, a Bangor High School graduate who adapted the idea from a Navy SEAL team who scaled Mount Whitney with a 10-pound stone in their rucksack in memory of a departed teammate.

The circumstances of each Maine casualty are different. But as Cote puts it, "We carry their stone for a hike; we carry their story for a lifetime."

Monica Lynn Bates of Abbot had planned to participate, but some health issues and her work schedule forced her to cancel the trip.

Bates works in the mental health field and is a volunteer for the JD Foundation, a suicide prevention organization. "I was going to carry the stone of Specialist Cassandra Lee Cassavoy of Porter, who took her own life at age 21 in 2007," Bates said. "Many people don't realize that suicide claims the lives of 22 veterans every day."

According to the Fallen Heroes Project website, Cassavoy had a promising military career but struggled with depression after her boyfriend committed suicide while she was stationed at Fort Gordon, Ga. Among her survivors was a young daughter, Chyann.

Bates participated in The Summit Project at Acadia National Park last fall and said it was "amazing." It meant so much to the families of the fallen and to other veterans.

While Bates said that she's "bummed out that I can't do it this summer, I'm looking forward to the next hike."

The engraved stone of Navy Lt. Jerry Smith of Greenville, who died in a plane crash in 2007, will be borne by hiker Eric Krohne of Portland this year. The stone came from his family's flower garden in Greenville and was retrieved by his brother, Eric, and mother, Fonda Smith.

Local service members honored by the Summit Project include Army Capt. John R. "Jay" Brainard III, 26, of Atkinson, a helicopter pilot who died in 2012 in Kabul, Afghanistan; and Pvt. Dustin Small of Palmyra, 19, who died in an auto accident in St. Albans in 2009. He was stationed at Fort Carson, Colo.

The Summit Project is also based on what Cote describes as three "Ls": learn, launch and letter. "Everyone who participates is required to write a letter to the next of kin within two weeks after the hike," he said. "It's the finale to a very moving tribute."

Greenville Consolidated School awarded grant

PORTLAND — Full Plates — Full Potential, a statewide campaign to end childhood hunger, has announced the winners of their first enrollment challenge.

The contest challenged schools to encourage families to fill out and return their free application for a free and reduced-price lunch for school-aged children. The free and reduced-price lunch program is a proven method of fighting childhood hunger.

More than 60 school districts from all 16 counties responded to the challenge, and six were chosen to receive $500 for their plans to increase outreach strategies including Greenville Consolidated School.

Other winners were MSAD 17 (Oxford Hills area), RSU 3 (Unity-Thorndike area), Union 122 (Woodland-New Sweden area) and the Winthrop Public Schools.

"The $500 grants are going to school districts tackling childhood hunger with a variety of tactics," said John Woods, a co-founder of Full Plates — Full Potential. "One in four children in Maine struggle with food insecurity and these grants will help schools innovate to fight hunger."

Full Plates — Full Potential was launched in late 2014 by food directors, nonprofit leaders fighting childhood hunger, businesses and governmental officials.

"Six school districts can now move forward with their solutions to breaking down the barriers that keep children from healthy food," said Sen. Justin Alford, a co-founder of the organization. "Schools will use this funding to develop an online application for families to return their paperwork to hosting workshops for families and the community."

Friends of Wilson Pond Area sponsoring photo contest

WILSON POND - In celebration of its 25th Anniversary as a Maine Land Trust, the Friends of Wilson Pond Area is sponsoring a photo contest. Twenty-five years ago, the Friends of Wilson Pond Area purchased a conservation easement on 150 acres of land which includes three miles of shore land on Lower Wilson Pond. Rum Mountain rises behind the easement which begins at Rum Brook and extends along the shoreline to the Thoroughfare between Upper and Lower Wilson Ponds. Four public, rustic shorefront campsites are maintained by FOWPA and are available on a first-come basis. Public access to the pond is available at the public boat landing on the south end of Lower Wilson Pond. Come explore the ponds by canoe, kayak or small motor boat.

Photo contest rules and more information about FOWPA may be found on the website: www.fowpa.org. Top prizes include a Dinner for 2 at West Branch Pond Camps, Tickets for 2 for a Katahdin Rock and Roll Cruise, and an Indian Hill Trading Post $50 Gift Certificate.

C.A. Dean's Northwoods Healthcare expanding Sangerville office

SANGERVILLE - Northwoods Healthcare, a department of Charles A. Dean Memorial Hospital, has announced that construction has begun on a $3 million expansion and renovation at its Sangerville location.

The project is anticipated to take approximately 13 months to complete and is anticipated to open to patients in the summer of 2017.

Patients will notice work being done at the 22 Haley Court site in Sangerville already. Physical therapy and the specialists will move back inside the main building and the modular unit will be removed as one of the first steps of preparing the grounds for construction.

"Patients can be assured that the clinic will remain fully functioning during construction," said Geno Murray, CEO of C.A. Dean. "We want to extend our greatest appreciation for our community's patience as the project takes shape. When the construction project is completed, we will be able to offer several new and exciting services such as onsite radiology and a full-service laboratory. It's all about providing our patients with the right care, at the right time, and in the right place."

Sangerville Town Manager Ken Woodbury praised C.A. Dean for its decision. "The availability of quality health care is critical in these rural areas of Maine with its aging population," Woodbury said. "The expansion of C.A. Dean's Northwoods Healthcare in Sangerville represents a significant and important commitment to providing excellence in access and delivery of medical services so vital to the health of our residents in the Sangerville/Guilford area. We are excited about this expansion and applaud C.A. Dean's investment in our community."

Northwoods Healthcare moved from Guilford to Sangerville in 2009 due to increased patient volume and the need for additional space. The practice also has offices in Greenville and Monson.

Mayhew says DHHS is meeting its goals

by Mike Lange
DEXTER - When Mary Mayhew was nominated to serve as commissioner of the Department of Health and Human Services in 2011, many of her colleagues were surprised that she applied for the position.

"That is a killer job, and you're always on the hot seat," Gordon Smith, vice president of the Maine Medical Association, told the Portland Press Herald prior to her confirmation hearings. "You've got thousands of employees and one giant headache."

Today, Mayhew said that she's accomplished many of her goals, despite some frustrating moments with the Legislature. "For the past two years, we've managed to live within our budget," Mayhew said. "We haven't had a shortfall. We've not only been able to live within our resources, but we've been able to make certain critical investments such as improved behavior home health care. We've increased reimbursement rates three times and none of that was part of a legislative proposal."

Mayhew was interviewed at the Eastern Gazette office last week after meeting with public health agencies and hospital officials in Arrostook County earlier in the day.

gest health concerns in the region include obesity, respiratory ailments, substance abuse and depression - and Mayhew said her department is addressing these issues directly.

"One thing we've done is develop models of care that reward best practices around the management of chronic disease," she said. "We need more supportive primary care physicians' offices with a team-based approach for someone with asthma or cardiovascular disease to manage their illness and not have to use the emergency room as often."

Mayhew said that one of her biggest challenges is to convince lawmakers that DHHS programs need to be prioritized. "You can't manage by emotion," she said. "You have to be able to thoughtfully and rationally evaluate priorities, analyze programs and manage resources."

One example she cited was when DHHS announced proposed changes to reimbursement rates for certain mental health services and released an initial draft of the document prior to soliciting comments from providers.

"Some of the providers were upset about the initial draft, so they went to the legislature and complained. So they passed a moratorium so that I can't adjust any rates - up or down. So here I am, charged with overseeing a $2.4 billion MaineCare program and they're restricting my ability

Walk-in hours, or unscheduled access, appear to be convenient and quick, but can often leave patients sitting and waiting to be seen.

Elaine's Bakery and Café expands

by Mike Lange
MILO – For three years, Elaine Poulin hoped that a new tenant would move into the vacant half of the Milo Heritage Building.

While there were some serious inquiries at times, nothing materialized.

So Poulin decided to expand her own business, Elaine's Bakery and Café, into the vacant space. "It was a big investment, but it's already starting to pay off," Poulin said. "We were packed on Mother's Day for breakfast."

On Friday, June 3 – National Donut Day – there will be a grand reopening celebration from 9 a.m. – 1 p.m. with free samples of Elaine's mini-donuts and other delights. The new space more than doubles the café's seating capacity for breakfast and brunch, now served seven days a week from 6 – 11:30 a.m.

There is also more room for the kitchen which turns out more than 30 different types of donuts plus cakes, pastries, whoopie pies, brownies, cupcakes, wedding cakes, homemade bread and much more. "Our pastries are in more than 30 stores right now and we could add another 10 this summer," she said. "We even have people call and ask to meet our delivery truck on the road."

For Poulin, the long days in the kitchen and café and the travel for catered events are a "labor of love."

She came from a family of eight and learned to cook and bake at an early age on her parent's potato farm, seven miles from Fort Kent.

After a 30-year career in Maine state government, she opened Elaine's Bakery and Café – originally known as Elaine's Basket Café and Bakery – at 24 Main Street nine years ago before moving into the Milo Heritage Building in 2013.

A USDA Rural Business Enterprise Grant financed the construction of the Milo Heritage Building after a 2008 fire destroyed five businesses on Main Street.

The Maine Department of Economic Development and Piscataquis County Economic Development Council assisted Poulin with funding for new bakery equipment. She now has 16 employees and business is booming. "We're already getting summer people opening up their camps," she said.

Before the expansion the café was so crowded at times that some customers would check out the Milo webcam "to see how many cars were parked out front," she joked.

The Maine Legislature has also passed bills to expand Medicaid six times and all attempts have been vetoed by Gov. Paul LePage. Mayhew agrees with his decision.

"First of all, it's not free. It was never free," she explained.

Mayhew said that the last bill sponsored by State Sen. Tom Savelli (R-Wilton) "had a price tag of more than $500 million over five years." She also said that many states that have expanded Medicaid eligibility "are drowning in a sea of red ink. They're cutting substance abuse funding and services for people with intellectual and developmental disabilities ... Because we didn't expand, we continue to make sure we have the right priorities to serve our most vulnerable population."

Mayhew said that decreasing wait times for services is still a major challenge. "We just can't tolerate that in a MaineCare program. We've got to do better," she said.

Dexter Farmer's Market opens for the season in new location

by Mike Lange
DEXTER – After nearly 30 years in operation, the Dexter Farmer's Market disbanded for a while until it regrouped and reopened in the P & L Market parking lot last season.

Now it has a new home: the Millworks parking lot on Route 7, across from Bud's Shop 'N Save.

Just three vendors took advantage of the nice weather and heavy traffic on opening day last Saturday. Still, they said they were pleased with the new location and confident that they'll have a busy summer.

"Frank Spizuoco (the Millworks owner) was fantastic," said Meredith Josselyn, manager of the market. "Once people find we're here, it's going to be a great season."

The nonprofit market's slogan is "Eat local, shop local and support local" and they'll be open Saturdays through Oct. 29 from 10 a.m. – 2 p.m.

Josselyn said that the organization is geared to small entrepreneurs "including those who are just getting started. Our membership fee is only $25 a year plus $2 for each day they're set up. We're a very laid-back organization."

That philosophy is fine with Sarah Babcock, who runs a small business in Ripley called A Frayed Knot. One of her products is a colorful tote bag made from plastic supermarket shopping bags. She cuts them into strips, spins them into yarn and weaves them into bags. "I've had this spinning wheel for a couple of years, so now I'm finding good use for it," she said. "I make items freshhand – no patterns," she added.

She also likes the new location. "There's certainly plenty of traffic here," she said. "If the weather stays nice, we'll have a great summer."

Mark Nolt, who operates the North View Market family farm, joined the Dexter Farmer's Market last year and also praised the new location. "The old place was fine, but this one has more visibility," Nolt said.

One of their specialties is homemade baked goods with all natural ingredients and no preservatives. "We have 10 children including six girls, so we have a lot of bakers in our family," he said with a smile.

Josselyn operates Heart of Maine Designs featuring unique gifts along with fresh eggs from free-range chickens. "We'd like to see more organic farmers participate this year and guest vendors are also welcome," she said. "We're local farmers supporting our local community."

For more information, email Josselyn at dexterfarmersmarket@gmail.com or call 270-3392.

THE DEXTER FARMERS' MARKET had a great kickoff to its 2nd season last Saturday, and this week welcomes back North View Farm of Dexter (baked goods, eggs, hanging baskets, jams, rhubarb), A Frayed Knot of Ripley (woodcrafts, eggs, birdhouses, recycled plastic yarn demonstration), and Heart of Maine Designs of Dexter (dreamcatchers, jewelry, balsam pillows, seedlings), as well as our guest vendor for the week, Iron Eagle Leather Goods. The market runs from 10-2 in the parking lot of Millworks, LLC (across from Bud's Shop 'n Save). Contact the market coordinator at 207-270-3392 with any questions.

- Meredith Josselyn

NEW LOCATION – The Dexter Farmer's Market has relocated to the Millworks parking lot, which gives the members greater visibility with ample parking, according to manager Meredith Josselyn. (Eastern Gazette photo – Mike Lange)

Valley Grange honors Sherry French

by Mike Lange
GUILFORD – She has dressed up as a nun, a giant bag of peanut M&M's and a Phyllis Diller look-alike. She's made people laugh and held the hands of hospice patients during their last moments. But she never sought recognition for her decades of community service because, as she put it, "I enjoy every minute of it."

On May 20, however, Valley Grange recognized Sherry French of Guilford as Community Citizen of the Year. The award was presented 14 years after her husband, Jim, was also honored by the fraternal organization.

"I'm here tonight to accept the award, not for myself, but for everyone who has helped me," said French, who has been the office manager and news assistant for Zone Radio's Dover-Foxcroft office since 1995. She cited many of the people who convinced her to become active in numerous organizations, such as former Mayo Regional Hospital CEO Ralph Gabarro who asked her to serve as president of the Piscataquis Chamber of Commerce. "So I did that for nine years," she said.

French has also served on the Shiretown Homecoming Committee, as a Pine Tree Hospice volunteer and on Guilford's Bicentennial Committee. "I put on a clown costume and went to a children's bereavement camp, and told children that it was okay to smile – even after grandpa died," she said.

She isn't afraid to ask for donations, either. "I called Stephen King (her boss at WZON) and asked him to pay for Tim Sample's performance at the Shiretown homecoming," she said. "And he did."

French also "chased down Dave Mallett on the sidewalk and said he should bring his guitar and play at the hospice variety show. He was there."

She rode on the fire truck with Santa Claus, served hundreds of meals from hot dogs to pancakes, "sat and laughed, sat and cried, gave a hug, kissed a cheek and kicked a butt. But I didn't do it alone."

"Many in the audience also shared memories of French's dedication including her son, Jerod. "It's a shadow I'm very happy to stand in," he said, citing the years that his mother served as a chaperone at school events and as a member of the sports boosters. "I support you 100 percent and I know everyone here loves you," he added.

Jim French said that even though his wife is involved in numerous activities, "Sherry is very easy to live with. I love her very much, we enjoy each other's company and she enjoys everything she does."

Brian Woodworth, who was named Valley Grange Citizen of the Year in 2012, lauded French as a "tireless worker, full of energy and the glue that holds everything together."

He joked that French created a Miss Shiretown Homecoming drag queen contest 10 years ago "and I'm embarrassed to say that I won."

Other previous Valley Grange Community Citizens of the Year include Julie Orton, the former principal of Piscataquis Community Elementary School; Matt Hackett, who served as assistant headmaster of Foxcroft Academy and principal of Penquis Valley High/Middle School; and Delores "Dodie" Curtis, former head of the nursing staff at Mayo Regional Hospital.

RIPLEY PREPARES FOR 200TH CELEBRATION - Ripley Historical Society is working on a "time line" to be displayed at the Town Office on June 25, the day of Ripley's celebration. The time line includes the history of Ripley as compared to events occur in the State of Main eand that of the United States. Pictured left to right are Ruth Sevey, Suzanne Chabot, Lois Woodcock, Linda Leavett and Dot Hutchins.

TREE DEDICATION - GFWC Miosac Members gathered at the Marion Doore Park for a double tree dedication recently. General Federation of Women's Clubs (GFWC) celebrated 125 years of service in 2015 and members voted to plant a tree in observance of the event. A hydrangea tree and a stone matching the one placed at the park in 2011 in honor of Marin Doore were selected. Marion Doore was a long time teacher in the Dover area and was also a member of the Miosac Club. Another tree was also purchased by the town in observance of Arbor Day and was dedicated in the park as well. The town plants a tree every year for beautification of the town. Town Manager Jack Clukey, Selectmen Steve Crammont, Gail Diagostine and deputy Tax Collector Cindy Woodworth attended the ceremony. Pictured are Rhea Michael, Pat Jones, Suzanne Raymond, and Anne Cress.
